DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after allowance or after an Office action under Ex Parte Quayle, 25 USPQ 74, 453 O.G. 213 (Comm'r Pat. 1935). Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, prosecution in this application has been reopened pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 13 August 2010 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 172-178 and 186 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Froix (US 4,871,785) taken in combination with Krezanoski et al (US 3,954,644) and in view of Newman et al (US 2007/0000792).

The reference to Froix teaches the production of a contact lens material wherein the lens material is polymerized in the presence of a polyethylene oxide (WSP), as herein claimed. The contemplated monomers are taught at column 4 (lines 13-27) and include those disclosed in the instant Specification. The process is shown at column 7 (line 600 to column 8 (line 2) and the many Examples. Example 10 describes casting a film. Since the reference is drawn to contact lenses, it is easy to infer that the known method of casting would be employed in the production of the lenses, per se.

The reference to Krezanoski et al (US 3,954,644) show the storage and cleaning of contact lenses using polymers, as herein recited and claimed. The patent to Krezanoski et al shows the use of polyalkylene glycol polymers for storage and cleaning of contact lenses. Note the Abstract.

The reference to Newman et al (US 2007/0000792) shows a typical package for a contact lens, as herein claimed. Note the Figures 1-7 that show the package to possess a cavity structure.

Froix teaches the manufacture of the contact lens of the claims. Krezanoski et al shows the solutions for cleaning/storage using a polyalkylene glycol polymers and show such as conventional, as recited herein. As such, the use of the solutions for cleaning/storage with the contact lenses of either primary reference would have been a prima facie obvious modification, as being standard in this art. Contact lenses, especially hydrophilic lenses, are stored in liquid to prevent their drying out and becoming brittle and useless. The employment of a package, while notoriously obvious since the product must be vended and distributed, or stored prior to distribution, is shown by Newman et al. As such, a skilled artisan would have a high level of expectation of success following the teachings of the references. Nothing unexpected is shown. The recitation of "single use" provides no patentable distinction since it is intended to be used at least once. The recitation and the claim language of "comprising" does not exclude the use of the lens a multiple number of times, or that a multi-use lens may not be included in the "package system" recited.
